"She was the real thing, took life serious, but never failed to see the humor and always had a smile and energetic greeting to all she met along the way. Adrienne was godmother to my daughter, Molly, who felt special when Adrienne took her shopping at Saks Fifth Avenue. She treated all four of my daughters to 'beauty sessions' with fingernail polish, etc. Truly, I had some grand times with Adrienne, both in the newspaper business and later in life. She'll be very much missed.” No Chicago service was planned for Miss Donlon. She requested her body be donated to medical research and then cremated.
